Apartment Museum

If you long to be back in the 1970s, then welcome to our apartment museum on Råslätt! Take a step back to the time when the color-TV and stereos was something new, when home computers and mobile phones did not exist.

In our apartment lived a young couple - it was their first apartment and they had taken a state loan of 5000 kronor to buy furniture. All was not new, little some was brought from home. The rent was high, 500 kronor per month, although electricity and heat were included.

Brush Museum, Bankeryd

In Bygdemuseet, there is an exhibition about brush production, which during much of the past century was one of Bankeryd's most important industries.

Bankeryd is the center of brush production in Sweden. Almost all Swedish brush production is done in Bankeryd. Harry Isaksson started the brush production in Bankeryd, in the early 1920s.

Grenna Museum

In the gallery you can see photos, sculptures and paintings. One floor below ground level, is the Polar Center and the André Expedition, among other things, feel the ice cold winds from the Engineer André's fatal balloon flight to the North Pole and take part in the predictions of the mystery surrounding the expedition. In the Polar Center, immerse yourself into André's experiences during the end of the 1800s, which has helped strengthen the interest in the Polar world more than ever today.

In the local section of the museum, meet Amalia, one of Sweden's first female entrepreneurs, whom so strongly believed in selling her polkagris (candy), she even wrote a letter to the king to get permission. Also take part in the Gränna regions rich historical heritage legacy surrounding Count Per Brahe. The museum has developed special road signs to assist you.

Do not hesitate to conclude your visit to the museum with a cup of coffee and a newly baked cinnamon bun.

Husqvarna Factory Museum

The fascinating 300-year history of the Husqvarna company, visualized with a variety of products and production equipment. It all started with muskets and other weapons for the Swedish army. In 1872, sewing machines were added, soon followed by stoves and a multitude of cast iron household items, bicycles, motorcycles and many other products.

The museum opened 27 April 1993. On 14 March 2005, it was newly inaugurated as the museum, and expanded to 2,400 square meters with a new handicapped entrance, new foyer and the new exhibition hall.

Munksjö Museum

A visit to the museum is a trip back in the mill's history and to industrial man's childhood. It tells about the people who got the wheels to roll, worked daily lives but also worked on machinery and technology. Much is devoted to the first manager Ottonin Ljungqvist, his family and household. See Ottonin's copper box that was found in the chimney!

Printing Museum

A living museum that will give you an experience beyond the ordinary in terms of the printed word's history.

We begin in the mid-1400's when the German Johan Gutenberg invented the lead type and printed the 42-series of the Bible. Publishing's first masterpiece.

Here are the "träplattor" (wooden plates) in which different molds were cut out to reproduce an event or a portrait for the press.

We show how the "kasten" boxes with different compartments for each letter - plucked letter by letter to form words and sentences for printing.

We have a designed lead setting machine from the late 1800s, and with it we can bring the text from a keyboard, and then cast the whole lines of text.

You can see the entire production cycle in the manufacturing of a daily newspaper before the process was computerized in the 1970s.

There are a number of older printing machines in operation which shows us the printing craftsmanship.

Worth Seeing

Rasmus Mill in Röttle

Rasmus Mill is a water driven flour mill in operation that can be showed by our skilled personnel.

Rasmus Mill has been renovated and restored to its original condition. Its three water wheels and an equal number of mill stones grind the grain - serving, and guided tours are normally handled during the summer months. The Mill building is made of stone and built in 1662 and became a mill around 1700.
