There are many islands to explore. Photo: Shutterstock

Welcome to the West Coasts Largest Island

Orust is Sweden's third largest island, after Gotland and Öland. Orust is separated from the mainland and Tjörn by a number of fjords and narrow straits. Here are several islands such as Kåringön, Gullholmen, Malö and Flatön, and together they make up Orust Municipality.

Orust has always been known for boat building, which you will notice when you come here. Before, it was Viking ships and small wooden boats built here. Today, Orust has a large part of Sweden's production of recreational boats. When you are here you can visit a lot of places such as; Mollösund Fishing Camp. Enjoy the Swedish west coast and its beautiful natural archipelago.

There are lots to do here while you are on vacation, you can swim, sail, paddle, hike, etc. In the winter you can experience the peacefulness and in the summer its bursting with life with many events. There is always something here to do and explore.

Sirius Diving & Fishing

Come along on an exciting sea fishing expedition for mackerel, cod, etc.. Departure from Mollösund at agreed upon times. Group size varies from 3 to 10 people.

Seal safari / Lyr around. On the islands in Måseskär, the seals enjoy being watched. Generally, in windy weather, the sea can be a little rough and a seal safari may not be so pleasant. Instead, we can take you on a trip through the islets around Lyrön and see the beautiful archipelago.

The archipelago around Mollösund has many exciting sites for diving, including many shipwrecks to explore. Please contact us for times and reservations.

Gullholmens Art Museum

Gullholmens Art Museum has its origin from the artists, whom in the 1850s, began to paint Gullholmen and Härmanö. Even in the early 1900s, it brought together artists at Gullholmen for the special lighting. The goal of the museum is to present these typical artists during that time. Then, Nilssons Pensionat opened in the early 1920s and similar to the Skagen painters, gathered here to capture that special light found along the coast. They received food and shelter during the time of year when the lights were best to capture what the island had to offer in terms of a picturesque fishing village and natural scenery in and around Hermanö.

Skipper House, Gullholmen

An original skipper's house from 1893 that gives visitors the opportunity to go straight into the turn of the century.

Even a boat museum, fishing museum and a house with a collection of sailing materials. Gullholmen is one of the west coasts' oldest fishing villages. It shows how people lived here as early as the 1200s. In the large herring periods of 1700 - and 1800-numbers grew society on the island and cannery, salter and sail back. It began using cutters for fishing and cargo, which both created jobs and made Gullholmen to a shipping and fishing society.

Mollön

A fascinating day out. Now traveling to new, constructed drying racks in the old style, which is manufactured after the old measurements and photos. Mainly it was people who had been with before, and knew how it would be that contributed to the modern spirit. Together with the exhibition in museisjöboden in Mollösund get a huge amount of knowledge about the past back fishing and long preparation. On Mollön outside Mollösund are fine walks and ancient relics, such as an ancient cemetery and the Bronze Age cairns. The island offers a fantastic view over the archipelago and the sea. During the summer gleams of the colors from the stepmother viol and trift. Sooner was a repslageri which produced makrilldörjor. Prepared long here, which hung out to dry on special racks. These are now in place again thanks to an enormous amount of work done by the Association Mollösund using project money from Carpe Mare.

Worth Seeing

Mollösunds church

Soon 140 years old, Mollösund church was inaugurated June 26, 1866. The replacing an older wooden church, which was contained in the old cemetery in the community, down to the harbor. The church was probably built during the great herring fishery period from 1556 to 1588. During the 1800s first half proved to be the church to be too small for the growing population in society. The church was badly in need of repair. Finally decided on a parish meeting, it would be replaced by a new
